DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. The indicated allowability of claims 1-5,18,22 and 23 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference to Ide, US Patent No. 5,892,171. Rejections based on the newly cited reference follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-5,18,22 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Armanto et al., (Armanto), U.S. Patent No. 6,094,587, in view of Kikuchi, US Patent No. 5,825,905, used previously and in further view of Ide, US Patent No. 5,892,171.

Regarding claims 1-5,18,22 and 23, Armanto discloses a telephony terminal apparatus (and method and machine readable medium) having a communication unit that transmits a signal to a remote location and receives a signal from the remote location and a music reproduction unit that can reproduce a music piece in association with the signal (col. 3,lines 35-64 and col. 12,Ines 19-34).

Armanto fails to explicitly disclose wherein the music reproduction unit comprises: a score data memory that memorizes score data representing a music piece; a tone generator of frequency modulation type settable with parameters for generating harmonics by frequency modulation to synthesize a tone a performance controller that sets the tone generator with parameters according to the memorized score data for enabling the tone generator to synthesize tones of the music piece represented by the score data.

In a similar field of endeavor, Kikuchi discloses wherein the music reproduction unit comprises: a score data memory that memorizes score data representing a music piece; a tone generator of frequency modulation type settable with parameters for generating harmonics by frequency modulation to synthesize a tone a performance controller that sets the tone generator with parameters according to the memorized score data for enabling the tone generator to synthesize tones of the music piece represented by the score data (col. 16, line 43 to col. 17, line 35).

At the time of the invention it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Armanto's programming of a telephone's ringing tone to include score data memory for the purpose of allowing musical score recognition as taught in Kikuchi.

The combination of Armanto and Kikuchi fail to disclose a performance controller that interprets the score data to read out timbre data designated by the score data from the timbre data memory for setting the tone generator with the read timbre data so that the generator can generate the tones having timbres specified by the score data according to read timbre data.

In a similar field of endeavor, Ide discloses a performance controller that interprets the score data to read out timbre data designated by the score data from the timbre data memory for setting the tone generator with the read timbre data so that the generator can generate the tones having timbres specified by the score data according to read timbre data (col. 7,lines 13-34 and col. 8,line 13 to col. 9, line 26).

At the time of the invention it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the combination of Armanto and Kikuchi to disclose a performance controller that interprets the score data to read out timbre data designated by the score data from the timbre data memory for setting the tone generator with the read timbre data so that the generator can generate the tones having timbres specified by the score data according to read timbre data, for the purpose of providing an extension of capabilities of a music apparatus such as an electronic musical instrument and a personal computer having function of an electronic musical instrument without any restriction.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 6-9,11-17,19-21 and 24-40 are allowed.
